

ANNUAL REVIEW REPORT FOR 2019

I would like to start Annual Review Report with the analysis of the article processing and rejection. This year we have received 28 articles, published 16. The percentage of rejected articles is 45%; for the whole period since 2016 – 25.5%. It means that we manage to keep up the quality of papers and choose for the publication only those, which will be of interest to our readers. Inspired by the editorial written by Suvarna Satish Khadilkar, Editor-in-Chief of "The journal of obstetrics and gynecology of India" (which I strongly recommend to all our authors – <https://doi.org/10.1007/s13224-018-1153-1>), I also want to make a brief explanation of our rejection. Dr Khadilkar expresses sympathy for the authors, whose articles were declined, but mentions that "Rejection rates of various top-tier journals including ours vary between 80 and 85%. Some journals have reported it to be around 90-95%" (Khadilkar 2018: 241). Notwithstanding the fact that her journal as well as others belong to top-tier medical journals, some reasons of article's rejection are identical. I will cite some of her explanations (Khadilkar 2018: 240) and add more. I will mark in colour those reasons, which prevail in 'Lege artis' and accompany some with the comments of my own:

- ❖ "The paper and the subject may be out of scope and not suitable for the journal and readership" – Though we have a wide range of traditional language disciplines under discussion, enumerated on our web site, some authors sent us the articles on history, medicine, and social sciences.
- ❖ "Weak hypothesis" – some authors even do not mention it.
- ❖ "Poor methodology, small sample size, poor statistical analysis".
- ❖ "Suspected or confirmed plagiarism" – As far as we have many cases of it, we had to add the following paragraph into Publication Ethics & Publication Malpractice Statement: "The paper should not be a translated copy of the author's PhD or any other paper that was published before in another language. Suspected or confirmed plagiarism and self-plagiarism are considered a serious reason for paper rejection".
- ❖ "Aims do not raise the right kind of questions, and background lacks clarity of thoughts".
- ❖ "Data are incomplete, and the methodology section has irreparable deficiencies".
- ❖ "Instructions to authors are not followed strictly" – Sometimes I have the feeling that few authors open our Guidelines and follow them, though we have instructions on 19 pages how to format the text, figures, tables, and references of any kind.
- ❖ "Figures are of low resolution, and tables are too complicated and are not comprehensible" – We demand figures in a JPEG or PDF format. Very often, they are in a Word format, ungrouped.
- ❖ "Discussion and conclusions do not answer the question posed in aims and objective" – Very often conclusions contain citations and are very short for the article of such a size.

❖ "Poor language and many spelling and grammatical mistakes create a bad impression on the reviewers" – It is one of typical drawbacks of our potential authors.
